Learning outcomes	At the end of this learning unit, the student is able to : In the wake of numerous fact-checking initiatives - including the recent one in Flanders: https://factcheck.vlaanderen/ - the legal clinic "Les Surligneurs" aims to carry out legal-checking, i.e. to verify the conformity with the law of statements made by public figures, particularly in the media. The legal clinic can also try to shed light on the political debate through its legal issues. These two objectives are achieved through "legal highlighting" or "legal clarification" operations, in which students,

Teaching methods	The legal clinic operates as an interactive and participatory workshop with all students. Exchanges take place during the sessions, but also outside of them, by setting up a WhatsApp group in order to (1) collectively keep abreast of political news and/or political statements to be commented on (media monitoring exercise) and (2) determine the student in charge of the writing, as well as the teacher in charge of the follow-up or the teacher-editor and the student who carries out punctual research. This teacher is not necessarily one of the two teachers in charge of the clinic; depending on the subject, another expert teacher (academic or scientific) in the legal field concerned may be called upon. The students can take on different roles to be specified during the first session after the introductory session: media monitoring to identify statements to be highlighted or political debates to be clarified; specific research enabling a teacher to write his or her article more quickly or more effectively (the student's collaboration is indicated on the
