

Teaching methods	This course is a lecture, nevertheless the subject matter can be illustrated by the analysis of documents and/or jurisprudential decisions. Exercises are scheduled in group sessions allowing the teacher to translate theory into practical situations. The practical work takes the form of five one-and-a-half hour sessions and one two-hour session organised in the second semester of the academic year. Active student participation is also expected. The practical work is intended to enable students to develop their ability to express themselves orally on a legal subject, in discussions with the assistant and among fellow students. This active participation (which is graded) requires adequate preparation of the announced sessions as well as case statements. Each student is required to produce a written work, preceded by a statement of the issue ("état de la question").. The latter enable to assess the understanding and practical application of the material covered in the course. Each student will also be required to make an oral presentation of his or her work. Precise instructions are given in the syllabus for the practical work. Attendance at the practical sessions - as well as the handing in of the actual work that the practical work involves
------------------	--

