Introduction

MNUC2MC - Teaching profile

Learning outcomes

This complementary master's programme aims to prepare doctors to become recognised holders of the specific professional title of specialist doctor in Nuclear Medicine (Ministerial decree of 19.07.1996 published on 10.09.1996).

Programme structure

The training course includes full time apprenticeships in recognised services and teaching centres. It lasts for at least five years, (full-time), three years of which consist of foundation studies and two years of higher studies. The apprenticeship project established by the university work promoter must be approved by the ministerial validation committee for the speciality. These periods of practical training include being on call.

Evaluation

The evaluation methods comply with the regulations concerning studies and exams. More detailed explanation of the modalities specific to each learning unit are available on their description sheets under the heading "Learning outcomes evaluation method".

Further to the application of the Royal Decree of 16 March, 1999, at the end of the first two years of training, the candidate will receive an attestation proving that he has successfully accomplished a specific university training course. A thesis, based on the conditions laid down by the Ministerial Decree of 19 July, 1996, will be presented and defended orally. Upon fulfilment of the above-described training requirements, the teaching committee will award the academic title in Nuclear Medicine.

This title does not replace official recognition by the ministerial validation committee. It attests the successful completion of an academic and scientific study programme in the context of specialised training leading to this validation.
